Seniors of '75

In the spring of 1963, the Graduating Class of 1975 were brought together to begin our elementary education. Being escorted in by our parents, we shyly entered our Kindergarden room and were counted as being twenty in all.

Twelve years after that date, in May of 1975, eight of the original twenty graduated. During our High School years we gained Charlotte Denholm in our Sophomore year and Tonya McDowall in the Senior year.

May of 1971 was the last year Eight Grade Graduation was held in Fairfax. We were the last class to have the honor of graduating twice, first as Eighth graders and then as Seniors.

Through the years we endured many different emotions and happenings. The years went by rapidly but the memories of our years at Fairfax will linger on for many years to come.

ANNUAL STAFF

STUDENT COUNCIL

The Student Council sponsored a Sock Hop for the High School students 9 through 12. We had a dress code of the 50's style. Admission was charged by the feet. We charged 10¢ for the first 6 inches of your feet size, and 2¢ for every inch over 6. The faculty and their spouses were invited and showed us how to do the dances of the Fifties. Our music was taken from records and tapes of the 50's. The Student Council served popcorn throughout the dance. We all had a good time.

LIBRARY CLUB

This year's Library Club was very active. The members of the club attended the annual state library meeting in the fall at Pierre. They had a Christmas party at school at which they exchanged gifts and had a small lunch. At the end of the year Mrs. McDonald took all the student librarians out for dinner, in appreciation of their help throughout the year. The officers of the Library Club were as follows: President, Jolene Gray, Secretary, Glenna Denholm, and treasure, Lili Denholm. Glenna also had the honor of being secretary of the Western District Student Library Association.

PAPER STAFF

This year the Paper Staff got a slow start. The title of the paper was "Bronc High Ways." The Editor was Cindy Walth and Co-Editor was Sue Beals.

The Staff consisted of Freshmen through Seniors. Everyone wrote articles for the paper and helped type them. The Paper Staff was not to efficient but they got the job done and had fun doing it.

SENIOR CLASS PROPHECY

It is a bright and happy May afternoon. Today the 1975 graduating class of Fairfax High School is having a class reunion picnic in the Fairfax City Park. We chose this day because 25 years ago, May 25, we had graduated together at Fairfax.

All kinds of vehicles and people are appearing at the park and laughter and shouts of joy were heard as long ago friends are reunited after such a long time.

As I entered the park gateway, a flash of something brown streaked past me and knocked me flat on the ground. As I dazedly sat up to see what had happened, I saw a big smiling face looking down at me from atop a shining horse. It was Cindy. She seemed happy to see me and was quite upset that she hadn't seen me walking there as she galloped past. She explained to me that she was in a big hurry to get to a local rodeo as she was now a professional barrel racer. As she had such a busy schedule with going to rodeos all over the world, she said that she never had found time to settle down and raise a family but that she was going steady with a bull rider and they were getting quite serious. When they would ever get married she didn'tknow. Being as busy as she was, she said she had only enough time to greet everyone and take off again. With that, she did.

As Cindy raced off and I was still a little dazed from falling on the ground, a very fashionable woman ran toward me and checked me for broken bones. To my amazement, I realized that it was Ammetta. After convincing her that I was alright, she finally calmed down and told me about her past 25 years. After graduating from the School of Nursing in Pierre, she had gone to New York City to work in the big hospitals there and met the man of her dreams, a doctor. After dating him for three years, she finally married him and gave birth to one child—a boy. After she and her husband became quite wealthy, they moved to St. Paul, Minnesota, bought an expensive house, and sent their child overseas to school. She helped me back up on my feet and then went to see if anyone else needed any help.

As I started to walk over to the picnic tables where all the other classmates were, a terrific sound was heard. Startled, everyone turned to see a gigantic Harley Davidson pull into the park with a woman sitting upon it. As the blonde-haired driver took off her blazing red helmet, we all recognized her as Tonya. She said hello to all of us and, being her same old self, immediately asked if anyone had brought any pizza. When we told her where she could find it, she sat down, devoured the entire thing, and told us about her life. After she had graduated from high school, Tonya remained in Fairfax and became an ex-policeman's wife. After marrying, they both became interested in motorcycle racing which led them to be the organizers of a large motorcycle club which travels cross-country, each summer from Lynch, Nebraska to Toronto, Canada.

After chatting with Tonya, I turned to see another former classmate, namely Dewey Ludemann. He and his high school sweetheart, now his wife, Glenna, were sitting at the end of the picnic table patiently trying to feed their six hungry children. After seeing the children, I noticed there were two sets of twins all boys, and two little girls which I discovered were born a year apart. I proceeded to walk over and ask how life treated him over the past 25 years. Dewey said that after he had gotten his certificate in welding at vocational school, he went back to the family farm, set up a shop, and married Glenna. After becoming wealthy with his welding shop, he bought out the Carlson brothers and now farms and ranches most of the county. I wished him luck and walked to the next picnic table.

There sat Sue, surrounded by two Dalmatians, a German shepherd, and a Persian cat. By the looks of things, I knew that she had become a successful veternarian. I sat down and had a nice long conversation about her past years. She told me that after getting her degree in veternarian work at Vermillion, she went to work in Burke as assistant vet and later moved back to Fairfax to set up her own animal hospital. She informed me that she too had married her high school sweetheart and they built a house adjoining the animal hospital where they are raising three of their own offspring. Even though both she and her husband are kept quite busy, they are both very happy with their lives.

I then went to seek out Nancy. I soon found her sitting beside her National Guard husband, Dave Carda, being her same old self, loud and laughing. She began telling me what had happened to her over the 25 years. Nancy got married the winter after she had graduated from high school. She went to work at the bank in Wagner and soon became a private secretary to the president of the bank. But after she and Dave decided they wanted to start a family, Dave made her quit her job. They then went to live in Dante where Dave became the manager of the local co-op. They have raised three children, two of which are in college and one who is a sophomore in high school.

I turned to see a curly-haired man sitting at the end of the table and recognized him as Mike Frasch. Mike greeted me with a smile, and I inquired about his life after high school graduation. He told me that after enlisting in the Army and realizing that it wasn't for him, he moved to Bonesteel to live with his brother Rod. After Lester and Vera Skalla retired, Mike bought out their business and extended the pool hall into a big supperclub where he has made a profitable business for himself. Even though Mike has never married, he likes to hang around the Tee Pee Cafe quite a bit just as he did during his teenage days.

I wondered where Charlotte was and turned to see her sitting at another picnic table conversing with Duane Herman. As I approached them, they seemed to be enjoying the reunion enourmously. They were surprised to see me, and Charlotte immediately began telling me about her past 25 years. After getting her degree in medicine at Brookings, Charlotte went to Chicago to work as a doctor. During her first year in Chicago, she met a fellow doctor and married him. They bought a large house in the country outside of the city and began to raise a family. They now have a girl, who is in her first year of college and a boy who is a high school junior. Having such an interest in plants, Charlotte had a green house built and now operated that during what little free time she has. Both she and her husband have made quite a successful name for themselves as doctors.

When Charlotte had finished, Duane told me what he had been doing since graduation. He said that in January of 1976, he enlisted in the Army, during his Army career, he was trained in electronics and later became the head of his unit in that field. After finishing out his Army term, Duane came back home and once again, started dating his high school sweetheart, Dawn. Because of the minor spats that they get into once in a while, they still haven't gotten married but are planning to in a few months. Duane now works as an electricain for Wiedner's Store and has made a very successful name for himself.

It was then his turn to ask me what I had been doing with my life over the long 25 years. I told him that after taking four years of schooling in Art and Design at Vermillion, I moved to Colorado and started working as an interior decorator. After living there for five years, I married an archetect, and we are now constructing a house in the mountains by Estes Park where we will be bringing up our two small children. I told him that just like all our former classmates, I too had become successful in my life.

Soon with much sadness, the day ended and it was time for all of us to bid our farewells, but before the good-byes were said, we had planned another class reunion to be held at the end of the next 25 years.

Read and written by Jolene Gray at the 1975 Junior-Senior Prom Banquet.
